

Miami moms create dream diaper bag

MIAMI — Come on, you've been there. Junior has filled his diaper to capacity and you've just entered the public restroom of your nightmares. Frantically, you rummage through the cavernous diaper bag that is slowly slipping down your shoulder, inching dangerously close to the wet floor, searching for wipes (did you leave the box at home?!), diapers, and changing pad. There's got to be a better way — and two moms from Miami have found it.

"I looked around trying to find a more efficient, usable bag, and it just wasn't on the market," says Karen Rappaport, co-creator of the My Royal Heinie diaper were brainstorming together about a better diaper bag," says Rappaport. "I really wanted a way to combine the two — wipes and bag — and have everything be more accessible, less bulky, and more attractive."

The two couldn't be more pleased with the finished product. The Royal Heinie diaper purse holds six diapers and features a side zipper pocket to hold mom stuff like keys, cell phone and wallet. The water-repellent, stain-resistant, machine-washable diaper purse features an ingenious, patent-pending Smart Wipes dispenser built into the side of the bag that houses the wet wipes. It's a great transitional bag perfect for the beach or the gym. Another great feature is the wrist strap that unsnaps making it easy to fasten to your stroller handle.

Best of all, it looks great. The sleek bags, at $37, are offered in solid colors of bright red, navy, chocolate brown, and blue with different trims — Dad might like the red with camouflage — and the coordinating changing pads are sold separately for an additional $8. The My Royal Heinie diaper bag can be purchased online at www.myroyalheinie.com and at local specialty retailers.